A total of 16 three-year-old fillies, two of which are on the also-eligible list, will travel 1 1/8 miles at Churchill Downs on Friday to contest the historic Kentucky Oaks (G1). This ultra-competitive affair features 12 graded winners among the 14 in the main body of the field, led by California queen BELLAFINA (#4) (2-1).

The Simon Callaghan trainee has rolled home to a trio of wins this campaign by a combined 14 1/2 lengths and will aim to make amends for her fourth-place result here in the Breeders' Cup Juvenile Fillies (G1) in the fall. While the morning-line choice can surely be the one to wear the blanket of lilies following the race, this contest offers multiple contenders with generous odds.

The Ashland Stakes (G1) at Keeneland was the most difficult Oaks prep this spring, and the top-three finishers from that affair could occupy the top-three slots on Friday once again.

OUT FOR A SPIN (#1) (15-1) registered a huge upset in the Ashland at odds of 52-1 in her stakes debut for conditioner Dallas Stewart, but it didn't look like a fluke. The chestnut daughter of Hard Spun forced a fast pace and never tired in the stretch, gamely repelling a Grade-1 heroine late in the process.

The Virginia-bred is getting very good at the right time. She owns early presence as well as a nice turn of foot, and in this race with so much pace on tap, she figures to make her run from off the tempo after saving ground every step of the way. The $75,000 yearling purchase picks up top pilot Irad Ortiz, Jr., and her experience over a wet surface could come into play, too.

Champion JAYWALK (#7) (8-1) has burned a lot of money in a pair of setbacks to kick-off her three-year-old season. The accomplished John Servis trainee had no excuse when an uncharacteristic fourth in the Davona Dale Stakes (G2) at Gulfstream, and she was then outrun in the stretch in the Ashland when checking in third by two lengths.

The Cross Traffic filly did show a lot of improvement last time out, however, and could be set for a peak showing third time off the rest. The gray was outmoved in early stretch in the Ashland but she never stopped trying inside the final furlong. Jaywalk cemented her championship juvenile campaign with a dominant win on this course in the Breeders' Cup Juvenile Fillies (G1), and the affinity for this famed oval could go a long way in the Oaks. Jockey Javier Castellano stays in the silks and his filly might be the overall speed of the field.

The Kenny McPeck-trained RESTLESS RIDER (#14) (6-1) has been first or second in each of her seven lifetime performances. The classy daughter of Distorted Humor always shows up, and she will be very difficult to leave off of any ticket in the Oaks. A game second off of a long absence in the Ashland most recently, the gray lass should have gotten a lot out of that comeback attempt to aid her chances today as a fitter contender.

Restless Rider turned heads with her 11-length romp in the Debutante Stakes here in the summer, and she concluded 2018 with a gritty runner-up showing in the Juvenile Fillies. Drawing widest of all in the field is an obvious reason for concern, however, her versatility in running style will give Brian Hernandez, Jr. options from the outset. The Kentucky-bred is also proven to be capable of handling a wet track.

The first leg of the Triple Crown will take place on Saturday with the 145th running of the $3 million Kentucky Derby (G1). A field of 20 sophomores is entered in one of the more competitive editions of the Run for the Roses in recent years.

Conditioner Bob Baffert has saddled five Kentucky Derby winners including Triple Crown stars American Pharoah (2015) and Justify (2018). The 2009 Hall of Fame inductee comes into Churchill Downs this year with a stout three-pronged attack of champion Game Winner, Santa Anita Derby (G1) victor Roadster, and Grade 1 standout Improbable.

Morning-line choice OMAHA BEACH (#12) (4-1) comes into the Kentucky Derby with three victories in succession, including wins over two of the aforementioned Baffert trainees in his last pair. Conditioned by Richard Mandella, the son of War Front has shown consistent progression since moving to the dirt in 2019, evidenced by his measured victories in the Rebel Stakes (G2) and Arkansas Derby (G1) in advance of his biggest assignment.

The Kentucky-bred possesses very good early speed in a field that lacks a confirmed front runner, and he showed an affinity for the Churchill Downs oval with a sharp five-furlong drill here last Saturday that was second-fastest of 43 moves on the day.

Omaha Beach has faced stern challenges late in his last two wins and responded with aplomb on each occasion. The striking colt is in expert hands and also lures jockey Mike Smith to stay in the controls when he had other options in the field. The favorite has been victorious in the Kentucky Derby on six consecutive occasions and Omaha Beach will make it seven.

The lightly raced ROADSTER (#17) (6-1) showed his versatility when taking back and rallying in the stretch past Game Winner in the Santa Anita Derby to notch his biggest victory to date. The gray son of Quality Road has been a much-hyped horse since his debut and he looks to be peaking at the right time. $525,000 yearling is a light-framed colt, so drawing outside is an ideal slot for him and it fits his running style, as well.

Roadster has displayed ample early foot to this point of his career, and he could conceivably get an ideal voyage within striking range while clear throughout beneath Florent Geroux. The colt shows a pair of strong six-furlong works to ready for the Kentucky Derby and he will be fully fit third time off of the layoff.

Fountain of Youth Stakes (G2) winner CODE OF HONOR (#13) (15-1) has a lot of longshot appeal for conditioner Shug McGaughey. A colt who flashed brilliance at two when finishing second in the Champagne Stakes (G1), the son of Noble Mission was unplaced in the Mucho Macho Man Stakes in his 2019 debut. He quickly reversed form, however, making a swift move in early stretch en route to his Fountain of Youth triumph.

The Kentucky-bred was a non-factor third in the Florida Derby (G1) in his most recent race that was a better effort than it appears to be on paper. The Will Farish homebred was never getting to the winner, but he did close well into a dawdling pace in what might be the ideal tune-up prior to the Run for the Roses.

Code of Honor is a versatile type that will benefit from his post position. Drawn inside of him are the speedy Omaha Beach and one-run closer Haikal, which will allow John Velazquez to break in and save ground into the first turn while stalking the tempo. The colt has reportedly been training in superb fashion of late, which includes a brisk half-mile breeze at Churchill Downs on Sunday.

KENTUCKY DERBY HORSE SIGNS

by Joe Kristufek

On Saturday, May 4, the Kentucky Derby will be run for the 145th time under the Twin Spires of Churchill Downs in Louisville, Kentucky.

Twenty equine athletes will test their courage, speed and stamina over a 1 1/4-mile distance in front of a massive, energetic and often raucous crowd. Talent is paramount but composure and fortitude are other critical components for a Derby triumph.

Based on the results of the points races over the last several months, all 20 horses earned their way into the Kentucky Derby starting gate. Some will be favorites, and others will be longshots. But remember, the horses don't know the odds.

On paper some horses might look better than others, but races aren't run on paper, and horses aren't machines. They're living, breathing animals. None of their race day experience to date, or any schooling they might go through the week before the race, can recreate the insane atmosphere they will face on the first Saturday in May.

From the walkover to the paddock to the tunnel to the racetrack and finally the starting gate, the Kentucky Derby participants will be center stage with an audience of roughly 170,000 people. Some of the horses will get stage fright, others will act like seasoned professionals.

Horses who get worked up before the race are unlikely to put their best hoof forward when the gate opens. Those who don't turn a hair have a much better chance to run to their top capabilities.

Here are some of the positive and negative signs you can look for on Kentucky Derby Day.

POSITIVE SIGNS

- Overall alertness
- On their toes, nudging the pony
- Prancy, but not too prancy
- Well-defined muscle tone
- Shiny coat — one that glistens in the sun — dappled, like freckles on a human
- Bright eye
- Satellite ears
- A horse with their neck bowed, feeling invincible

NEGATIVE SIGNS

- Sweating on a cool day. Look for a frothy substance on the neck and kidney area. It's a sign of nervousness. Sweaty horses are said to be "washed out"
- Dull and disinterested — walking with their head down like they just woke up from a nap. Take note, the lazy look may not be a negative for classy, seasoned veterans who have been to battle many times and understand their job
- Rambunctious — horses who are overly excited are wasting valuable energy
- Incessant tail swishing — a sign of being mad or upset
- Head over the pony in the post parade — a sign they're anxious and looking for comfort

Horses can't talk, but they can communicate with their body language, not only in the Kentucky Derby, but in every race that is run. When picking horses to bet on, use these visuals to your advantage.

KENTUCKY DERBY HANDICAPPING FACTORS

by Vance Hanson

We're days from the centerpiece of Thoroughbred racing in the U.S., but for many the process of handicapping and analyzing the Kentucky Derby has been ongoing for months. With the final preps almost completed and the field nearly formed, the focus soon turns to not only sniffing out the winner but also crafting mutuel tickets around that opinion in the hopes of a significant payday.

What goes into making that final selection and deciding how to bet the Kentucky Derby? Opinions obviously vary, and a survey of prominent handicappers and industry insiders revealed just that when asked about their views ahead of what some are already describing as one of the most contentious and fascinating Derby renewals in years.

With post-time favorites currently on a six-year winning streak in the Derby, answering the question of "Who is the best horse?" remains to some the most important handicapping factor and a jump-off point to any analysis of the race.

"Like many, I used to handicap the Derby a lot differently than I would the sixth at Turfway on a Thursday, worrying about breeding, Dosage Index, how many preps the horse might have had, seasoning, etc.," said long-time reporter and handicapper Bill Finley. "The way horses are prepared for the Derby has changed so much in recent years that I think a lot of those factors have been negated. When it comes to handicapping, I now treat it like any other race.

"Pace scenarios are still vital in the Derby," Finley added. "Though we have not seen it in a few years, the race can turn into a meltdown where all the front runners fall apart and some bad horses can stumble into third or fourth just by passing exhausted horses. Conversely, you have to be aware of a pace scenario that will favor the front runners."

Peter Rotundo, Breeders' Cup's Vice President of Media and Entertainment, is firmly in the camp that pace makes any race, especially the Derby.

"I think you have to treat it like any other race and find the horse who will have the best pace setup," Rotundo said. "It's hard to figure out who will [have the best] trip with 20 horses in the race so really you have to keep it as simple as possible and try to not overthink it."

Scott Shapiro, handicapper and analyst for Brisnet.com, TwinSpires.com, and BetAmerica.com, feels recent changes in how horses qualify for the Derby have made an impact on conventional pace analysis.

"The factor I think has the most significant impact now is running style," Shapiro said. "With less speed horses that are clearly distance-challenged entered it has become almost imperative to have some sort of tactical speed. I am no longer willing to endorse a closer like I did several time in past renditions of the event."

For others, how a horse looks and has looked leading up to the first Saturday in May is most crucial.

"I am a very visual handicapper, so how a horse looks and travels is the number one factor for me," said Joe Kristufek, whose many hats worn include his current position as Churchill Downs' on-track analyst. "That being said, the strength of the races they're exiting, race shape, 10-furlong pedigree, and how they train once arriving at Churchill are all key elements."

Jill Byrne, Vice President of Racing at Colonial Downs and a former television and simulcast analyst says appearance is one of the most important factors for her. "How the horse looks and trains in the week leading up to the Derby is critical for me," she said.

Donna Barton Brothers, a former jockey and now a reporter/analyst for NBC Sports' Triple Crown coverage, concurs.

"As we get closer [to the Derby] the number of people and activity increases on the backside. How are the horses handling it? Do they appear to thrive on the attention or shirk from it? I will toss any horse that is not handling the Derby week crowd during morning training hours and/or in their paddock schooling sessions in the afternoon," she said.

Shapiro, however, thinks evaluating the appearance of a horse is the most overrated factor in the lead-up to the Derby.

"If a horse looks bad I care. The fact is most look great or they wouldn't be in the race," he said. "I have seen too many overbet horses go down the drain that look like they can't lose."

The post-position draw was described by several respondents as the most overrated Derby handicapping factor. Noted handicapper/reporter John Pricci, currently the executive editor at horseraceinsider.com, took a nuanced view saying: "The experience factor can be, at once, overrated and underrated."

A relative lack of experience certainly proved no detriment to Justify, who in 2018 not only became the first horse since Apollo in 1882 to win the Kentucky Derby without having raced at two, but swept the Triple Crown.

"Most overrated [factor]? History. Strength of preps, etc. Every horse and road to the Kentucky Derby is different," Kristufek said. "I don't believe in 'a horse can't do that' based on history. I look at every horse, race and situation individually."

The most underrated handicapping factor in Kristufek's estimation is overlooking what a horse has shown capable of doing on their best day. "If their final prep wasn't great, but the one before was, and they have an excuse..."

For Shapiro, the trainer angle is the most underrated factor to an important degree.

"I know it gets plenty of attention, but this race more than any other I know of requires near perfection from start to finish," he said. "It is hard enough to win if you are Baffert or Pletcher. If you are not experienced it is a huge knock to me."

When asked about the enduring importance of pedigree, a common refrain was that it's still a leading factor but perhaps not as much as it once was. Several respondents noted that too little attention is paid to one side of a horse's family compared to the other.

"The dam is much more influential than many people believe," Donna Barton Brothers said. "So much significance is given to the sire and his ability to get the distance but, in reality, affinity for turf vs. dirt, sprinting vs. routing, typically comes from the female family."

Byrne agreed, adding: "One thing to look for in a pedigree is turf breeding on the dam side. Those horses tend to excel on the dirt course at Churchill." Said Kristufek: "I definitely tilt towards the dam's side. What did they do and their siblings do on the track and what have they produced?"

Rather than a deep pedigree analysis, many players perhaps opt for Scott Shapiro's approach.

"I use it as a separator for the most part," Shapiro said. "Like everyone I remember caring about Dosage. When that was out the window I started trusting my eye and gut on stretch outs a lot more."

What all the work and time invested in solving the Derby puzzle ultimately comes down to is walking away with more cash than you had before the gates sprung open.

"With 20 horses in the race, it's the best betting race of the year," Kristufek said. "I honestly spend six months handicapping it. I should be confident enough in my opinions to make a significant investment."

Into which pools our respondents generally dive into on the Derby varied. Jill Byrne called the Trifecta box her "favorite" Derby wager. John Pricci called the Win, Exacta, and Trifecta "a must," but noted he tended to scale back play on the Superfecta due to the absence of fractional wagers. That, however, doesn't stop others from seeking an epic payout.

"From a wagering perspective, I focus on Trifectas and Superfectas," Peter Rotundo said. "You rarely have chances at a lifetime score so this the race to take the shot at glory!"

"If I pool money, I'm certainly going to swing at the Superfecta...it pays SO much better than the Trifecta," Joe Kristufek said. "If I really like a horse, I will pound the Win-Place-Show pools regardless. Exactas are also a point of focus. Trying to hit them multiple times based on my confidence level."

As Bill Finley noted, even taking short prices among a field of 20 can potentially pay dividends.

"There is actually great value on the favorites in the Derby. That's because of what I call the 'Mine That Bird factor,'" he said. "The people who bet one race a year are now hunting for longshots and horses that should be 200-1 are going off at 38-1. If you love a longshot, don't bet him to win, but use him in Trifectas and Superfectas where the novice players don't affect the pools."

"The Superfecta is enticing because if you get it right you really can hit a $90,000 bomb. But, again, I'll treat [the Derby] like any other race, looking for the best value. Nothing wrong with betting a 6-1 shot to win if you feel the horse should be 5-2."

Rather than committing himself to playing certain wagers, Scott Shapiro takes a broad overview of the landscape before deciding whether to invest in specific pools.

"I approach every Derby different, but for the most part it is based on how I feel about the favorite and if I have a key horse," he said. "Some years I will just take shots with only price horses and limit my bankroll. Other years if I like a horse I will bet to Win, key in Trifectas and single in horizontals."

Opinions abound not only on the horses that will eventually line up in next month's Run for the Roses, but also on the analyzing process and the best way to capitalize on the opinions thus formed. There is no right or wrong way that applies every year, and one's judgment will be decided in slightly more than two minutes on the first Saturday of the May. It is indeed one of the Kentucky Derby's most appealing attributes.

LOOKING AT WAGERING POOLS FOR PROFIT

by TwinSpires Staff

Learning how to read wagering pools can make a significant difference for an astute horseplayer. Being aware of the money in play, and what it means, could be the difference between profit and loss. Here are a few things to look for within the tote system.

DISTRIBUTION OF MONEY IN WIN/PLACE/SHOW POOLS

After handicapping a race, it is important to determine the best way to wager on your preferred horse or horses. Most professional gamblers will focus their attention on just the Win pool, and while this is the least conservative method, it is the one that gives you the best chance to show a profit long term. In some cases a horse may have a significantly higher percentage of money in one pool than in another. A proper vision of these pools, especially just before post, can help make your decisions for you.

EARLY MONEY

Looking at where money comes into the pari-mutual pools first can sometimes lead a horseplayer to a runner they may not have liked in their initial handicapping. Perhaps it is the owner or trainer betting their entrant before it is time to saddle their horse, or someone who is wagering a large sum of money regardless of the odds. In many cases this can be seen as knowledgeable, or what gamblers refer to as "smart money." With pools as large as the ones in the Kentucky Derby, it is very hard to differentiate between smart money and funds bet by those with less information.

PAYOUTS IN THE HORIZONTAL POOLS

Much like dollars sent in long before post time, identifying horses who were bet more in the Daily Double or Pick 3 pools can often land a horseplayer on a live horse. If a runner is the fourth or fifth choice on the tote board shortly before the start of a race but is one of the lowest payouts in the horizontal pools, in some cases that could mean a horse is more live than his or her past performances may suggest. The size of the Kentucky Derby pools may not lend itself to this strategy, but it could yield some positive results on the races leading up to the Derby.

HANDICAPPING THE KENTUCKY DERBY

by TwinSpires Staff

When it comes to handicapping the Kentucky Derby, there's what you know, what you think you know and what everyone else thinks they know. That list also happens to be in order of importance, too.

Whether you play the horses every day or just check in for the Kentucky Derby, this is the one race a year everyone wants to get right. That means a lot of extra analysis, and some of it is actually worth listening to!

From a beginner's standpoint, one of the best pieces of advice is: winners win. The last eight Kentucky Derby winners all won their final race before the Derby, and the previous six winners were undefeated as 3-year-olds before winning the Derby.

In this year's field, the undefeated-at-3 group is Maximum Security, Roadster and Tacitus, and the other last-out winners (with previous losses this year) are By My Standards, Cutting Humor, Omaha Beach, Plus Que Parfait and Vekoma.

At 1 1/4 miles, the 2019 Kentucky Derby is the longest race any of the entrants will have run in, except for the Japanese contender Master Fencer. Couple that with Churchill Downs' long, 1,234.5-foot stretch and the perception is that closers (come-from-behind types) can be at advantage, but the results don't support that conventional wisdom.

Even deep closers, such as Mine That Bird in 2009 and Orb in 2013, were on the lead by the eighth pole in the race. What does that mean for trying to find the winner of this year's race? Prefer horses who do their best running in the middle part of the race.

This year that's Tacitus, with the most consistency by virtue of his moves in winning both the Tampa Bay Derby and Wood Memorial Stakes. By My Standards also qualifies based on his Louisiana Derby victory.

In general, post position is an overrated handicapping angle. That's not to say it's not important, but it is typically overvalued. The one exception when it comes to the Kentucky Derby is post position No. 1. Historically that post is not so bad, but the era of "small" Kentucky Derby fields are long gone. When more than 14 horses enter, the track uses an auxiliary gate that pushes the main gate closer to the inside rail. This is absolutely a handicap for the rail horse, and with the inside post position, I will downgrade a horse's chance to win no matter what.
